Problem Statement

Customers are struggling to find affordable hardware and software for their video gaming needs online. With hundreds of different retailers, it can be impossible to find the best possible deal with the least possible effort.

Who

Computer enthusiasts who are looking to upgrade their personal machines.

What

There are too many retailers to accurately nail down the lowest price of a product.

Where

The problem presents itself while online shopping for computer hardware and software.

Why

The prices of hardware and software have exponentially increased in the past two years because of supply chain shortages and price gouging, leading to most computer enthusiasts being unable to afford even basic equipment.
